Many of us are struggling today to put our feelings about the tragedy in Nelson House into words. Our hearts go out to Nisichawayasihk Cree Nation and all of those affected.

As part of the Frontier Family, we stand with you, we hurt with you, though we know that the pain we are feeling is only a small amount of that felt by the family and friends that were closest to them.

We know that there are many of our Frontier students who will be dealing with their own emotions around the deaths of these three students. We encourage anyone who feels they want to talk about this tragedy to speak to a classroom teacher or Guidance Councillor. Parents and caregivers, if you feel your child needs support, please do not hesitate to reach out to your child's teacher or school and we will help put that support in place.

We also encourage you to speak with one another and come together as our communities often do in times of grief.
